VEITMIER GETS VASE AS TROPHY

Representative of Powder Company
Wins in Events For Professionals at Gun Club.

MANY ATTEND ALL DAY SHOOT

Local Men and Good Shots From All Over State Make High Scores.

With the genuine hunting coats, the smoked glasses and all the trimmings
that usually go with a gun club shoot,
the contestants at the Gun and Country club shot their heads off today—figuratively speaking, of course. There was a good crowd out to witness the events and the entries were heavy in all the contests.

Veitmier, with the Balistile and Empire Powder company, won the event for professionals today. This event was out of the ordinary in that few clubs ever arrange anything for the professionals. They are not allowed to shoot for money, but may receive trophies in separate events like the one at the shoot today. Veitmier tied with another contestant in the first trial with a score of 19 out of 20. In shooting off the tie Veitmier made a perfect score, getting all of the twenty possibilities. The trophy was a beautiful vase.

Other professionals who were here today were LeCompte, with the Dupont Powder company; James Barr,
with the U. M. C., who was in charge of the office; Van Nest of Indianapolis, with the Winchester company;
and Marshall with the U. M. C.

The local men were getting into the game in great shape today and showed that they knew a few things about shooting. They made some good scores in all the events. They had considerable competition, too, for there were a number of good amateurs from over the State. Mayor Voris of Crawfordsville was one of them and he made some good scores.
Kannouse of St. Paul, the amateur champion of the State; Moore and Britton of Indianapolis, and Cain of Dayton were others who made good scores during the day.

INTELLECTUAL AND ALSO FOOD FEAST

Second Feed Will be Supplied by James E. Watson at Broadway
M. E. Church.

ORGANIZED INTO TWO TEAMS

The Men of Broadway, a church organization of Indianapolis, is planning for a big feed November 12. That a food feed. But they are also preparing for an intellectual feed and it is to be handed out by James E. Watson. Mr. Watson will talk on the subject, "The Relation of Politics to Good Citizenship." They have planned a novel feature for the occasion which is as follows: The club is divided into two teams, each one having chosen a captain. The team winning, that is the team which gets the largest number of men on its side, will feast on fried chicken, while the losing team will have to be satisfied with pork and beans. But they promise to make the pork and beans of the very highest class so that no one will go away hungry.
The organization is in the Broadway
M. E. church.

WILL LOCATE IN THIS CITY

Dr. Verne Logan of New Salem Will Practice Here.

Dr. Vern Logan of New Salem has sold his practice and all of his property and will move to this city soon,
where he will engage in the practice of medicine. He will reside in his property in West Third street, now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Wol-verton and family.

CHURCH WOMEN WILL SELL HOG

Man Who Offered to Give Them the Porker if Building Was Done
Keeps Promise.

MONEY FOR CHURCH BENEFIT

The women of the M. E. church at Milroy have not gone into the hog business, but nevertheless they will sell a fine porker next Thursday at auction. And it all came about in an unusual way. They served dinner at the Harrison hog sale last year. At that time one of them made the statement that they hoped to be able to serve dinner this year in the basement of their new church, but that hope was not very strong even with the most optimistic.

"Tell you what I'll do," said Paul Harrison. "If you serve dinner in the basement of your new church
next year, I'll give you a good hog."
And now he has to give the hog for the women will serve meals during the hog sale Thursday, and they will serve in the basement of their new church. So the hog will be auctioned off and the money will go for the benefit of the church.

COUNTY SCHOOLS TO HAVE BIG DAY

Annual Field Day Exercises Will be Held at the County Fair Ground Saturday.

MUSIC BY THE MANILLA BAND

Saturday will be a big day for the schools of Rush county. The annual field day exercises will be held at the Rush county fair grounds, and the indications are that the day will be a success. The events will begin promptly at ten o'clock. In the morning the running and jumping contests will be disposed of. The drills will take place at one o'clock.
These events promise to attract many people.

Four basket ball teams have entered the contest for the championship. Preliminary games will be played in the morning and the winners of the preliminaries will play in the afternoon. There is much friendly rivalry among the teams.

Music will be furnished by the Manilla band, and the members of that organization will be diked out in new uniforms. The band is proud of the new outfit and hopes to make good music and a good showing in the initial appearance. A large crowd is expected Saturday.

NEAR-GYPSIES HERE.

A tribe of the near-gypsies went through here yesterday afternoon on their way to that unknown some-somewhere. They did the usual begging stunt and sent the children out for pennies.

ORDER GRANTED IN MAYS CASE

Judge Sparks Allowed Temporary Restraint Until Tomorrow When Argument Will be Held.

LENGTH OF TIME IN COURT

Work on Building Will go on as Usual—Suit is Unique in the Courts.

Judge Sparks was here last evening and granted a temporary restraining order in the Mays school suit until tomorrow morning when the arguments will be heard in the local courts on the question as to whether the restraining order will be in force until the next term of court
when the case to enjoin the trustee Chester D. Rhodes will be heard.

The work on the building will go on as usual but as long as the restraining order is in force the trustee will not be liable to pay costs of the construction. The argument on the temporary order will be heard tomorrow morning in the local court room by Judge Sparks and he will return a decision as to whether the order will continue in force until the case proper will be heard in the next term of court.

The suit is only the outgrowth of a dispute of long standing which has been in the courts before. Several cases in regard to the same argument have been heard in the local courts and nothing has ever been really accomplished. The township is really divided against itself with politics playing no part in the affair.

The suit is of unusual interest and will no doubt attract State wide attention as it is new in the courts.
Attorneys say that there is no decision in any of the higher or lower courts and that there was never any case filed in which such a question was involved, that of alleging that the actions of a public official were not legal on the grounds that he was insane at the time of the action.

WENT IN QUEST OF THE BIG GAME

Hunting Party of Seven Veterans Left This Morning For The Wilds of Missouri.

SAY DEER ARE PLENTIFUL

The members of the hunting party who left this morning for Missouri expect to have a "deer" eye when they return in about four weeks as they are going in quest of big game.
The party of seven veterans at the sport left early this morning for the wilds of Missouri where they will hunt for about a month. They say that the country there is rich in game and especially are there plenty of deer, wild turkeys and ducks. It is an annual event with some of the members of the party who go every fall. The party includes Claude Cambern, Noble Brann, Samuel L.
Innis, Ben McFarlan, J. D. Case of this city, Albert Smith of Indianapolis, and Emory Jarrett of Homer.

—Walter Kaler of St. Paul was here today for the Gun club shoot.

LOCAL DOCTORS WILL ENTERTAIN

Union District Medical Society Will Meet in Court House Assembly Room Tomorrow.

ALL DAY PROGRAM ARRANGED

Prominent Physicians From Cincinnati and Hamilton, Ohio, Will be in Attendance.

The semi-annual meeting of the Union District Medical Society will be held in this city in the court house assembly room tomorrow. The members of the Rush County Medical Association met in the office of Lowell
M. Green yesterday afternoon to make arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors.

The Society includes Wayne, Union, Fayette and Rush counties in this State, and Butler and Preble counties in Ohio. The meeting will be largely attended not only by the physicians of this district, but also many doctors from Indianapolis will
be in attendance.

One of the best numbers on the all-day program arranged is the paper to be read by Dr. E. O. Smith of Cincinnati, Ohio, who is a former Rush county boy. He is a nephew of Dr. W. H. Smith and Ben L. Smith of this city. Dr. Smith is one of the leading specialists of Ohio, and enjoys a large practice in the city in which he resides.

Among the more important numbers on the program are the lectures to be delivered by Dr. J. L. Masters of Indianapolis, and Dr. D. W. Hancock of Hamilton, Ohio. The local physicians are looking forward to a day of pleasure as well as instruction. Many interesting subjects in the field of medicine will be discussed.

The local society will keep up the standard which they have set as entertainers. They have made arrangements with Wallace & Son, proprietors of the Windsor hotel to furnish the first meal in the new establishment.

The program is as follows:
President's Address, Dr. F. T. Du-Bois, Liberty, Ind.

"Hydrophobia," Dr. D. W. Hancock,
Hamilton, Ohio.

Discussion opened by Dr. D. W. Me-
Queen, Camden, Ohio.

"Cystitis," Dr. E. O. Smith, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Discussion opened by Dr. C. H. Parsons, Rushville, Ind.

itis," Dr. J. L. Masters, Indianapolis, Ind.

Bramkamp, Richmond, Ind.

MINISTER WILL MOVE HERE

Dr. Turner and Family to Come First Week in November.

The Rev. J. W. Turner and family will move from their Decatur county home to this city the first week in November. Dr. Turner is the new minister of the St. Paul's M. E.
church and will reside in the parsonage, just south of the church which was occupied by Dr. Tevis and family. Dr. Turner has been traveling back and forth from his home when he preached.

DO NOT KNOW "JUMPER"

Connersville People Can Not Place
Skeins or Cleve.

Connersville News: The Rushville
Republican says that Skeins, the alleged board bill jumper, who disappeared from Shelbyville, came there and under the name of Cleve, got work in a factory. A Connersville man identified him as Skeins and soon afterward he again disappeared, leaving another board bill. The fellow must have used some other name
if he ever lived here as no one seems to know him.

ARMY'S ANNUAL FALL CAMPAIGN

Salvation Workers Will Begin Special Meeting at Their Hall Next Tuesday Night.

ADJUTANT WORKERS COMING

The Salvation Army will open its annual fall campaign next Tuesday night. Meetings will be held in the army hall in South Pearl street each evening. The meetings will be in charge of the local workers assisted by Adjutant Wescott, who is well known in this city. Prominent speakers will be here during the campaign from Indianapolis and there is every indication that this meeting will be one of the most successful ever held by the army in this city.
The workers will leave nothing undone toward making the campaign a great success.

TO LEAVE MILROY FOR OLD NEW YORK

The Rev. Mr. Patterson Resigns as Pastor of the Christian Church There.

MEMBERS ARE DISAPPOINTED

The Rev. Mr. Patterson, pastor of the Christian church at Milroy has resigned to accept a pastorate in New York. He announced his resignation last Sunday and it will take effect soon. It was known that he had been considering the proposition
he had from the East, but the members of the church had hoped to keep him. He has been a popular minister at Milroy and has been a valuable aid to the church in its growth. The members had arranged to meet the expenses of keeping him,
and the announcement of his resignation was a big disappointment to them. They feel that they will have a hard time getting a man his equal.

SADDLE HORSES SOLD.

LIFE EVER WAS A DEEP MYSTERY

Jack McCall, Who Died Last Night,
Was Always Known as an Eccentric Character.

HE CAME IN HERE AS A TRAMP

Disappeared Suddenly and Was Gone
25 Years—Came Back as Mysteriously.

Jack McCall, an eccentric character, died at the home of Mrs. L. M.
Holden, north of New Salem, last night of heart disease. The end of his long life came rather suddenly as he had been in perfect health up until the last two or three days when he began complaining about feeling bad.
The deceased was eighty-one years of age and was a native of Kentucky. He had always been known as a very peculiar man and nothing much was known about his early history before he came to Indiana. He walked into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Hite, near
New Salem, one day in the year 1847.
He was a tramp and applied for work. They gave him employment and he proved to be a very faithful man.

One day he disappeared as suddenly and as mysteriously as he had come. There was much speculation then as to who he was and where he came from. The people learned afterwards that he hailed from Maysville, Kentucky. The family had given him up as lost and never expected to see him again.

One evening in the year 1884 he came back as he went and had been there working faithfully since that time. But the people with whom he lived never knew where he had been during the intervening twenty-five years, nor what he had been doing.
He had been living for a time with
Mr. and Mrs. Hite and then with Mrs.
Holden, where he died last night. The air of mystery has always hung about his life away from here and he was always known as a very eccentric character.

A short funeral service will be held at the home of Mrs. Holden tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock and the burial will take place in Richland cemetery.

THIRTY-FOUR LIVES LOST

Terrible Tale of Death In a Stormy Sea.

SIX OF CREW WERE SAVED

In a Fierce Gale the Steamer Hestia Strikes on the Rocks Off Grand Manan Island and Nearly All on Board Were Lost in Efforts to Escape in Small Boats.

St. John, N. B., Oct. 27.—Through the wrecking of the Donaldson Line steamship Hestia on a shoal near Old Proprietor led-a, Grand Manan island, thirty-four lives are believed to have been lost. Only six lives are known to have been saved out of the ship's complement of forty men. They were taken from the stranded vessel by a crew of life savers, who put out from the Seal Cove station on Grand Manan and fought their way through heavy seas and around ledges until at last they came alongside.

At least twenty of the crew, with Captain Newman among their number, managed to get away from the stricken vessel in a small boat, but the craft was so overcrowded that it was impossible to man the oars and the boat went drifting out to sea before the stiff northwest gale, in danger every moment of being capsized because of its heavy load.

An older boat, into which there were crowded sixteen of the crew, was capsized suddenly because of the breaking of the tackle as it was lowered, and all hands went into the water. Some of them went down at once. Others clung to the boat and just as they succeeded in righting it, it turned over once more. Two seamen were taken into the overloaded captain's boat and possibly more, but the darkness prevented those left from seeing clearly.

A third boat was smashed to pieces as it hung on the davits, and therefore there was no way for the six men left to make their escape. They watched the fate of their companions as long as they could, expecting every minute that the steamer would slide off the rocks and founder. These men were afterward taken ashore in the lifeboat and landed at Seal Cove.

The Hestia left Glasgow October 9, bound for this place, with a general cargo, after which she was to have proceeded to Baltimore. On the voyage a succession of westerly gales were encountered, but the steamer weathered them all in safety. As she was swinging around the lower end of Nova Scotia to enter the bay of Fundy the hardest gale of the lot was met. Just how the Hestia came to get in on the rocks which surround Grand Manan island has not been learned yet, but was possibly due to the navigating officer losing his bearings.

WHO WILL GET IT?

Speculation as to Who Will Land the Jeffries-Johnson Fight.

New York, Oct. 27.—Unless present indications amount to nothing, Jeffries and Johnson, after signing articles of agreement, will play three San Francisco promoters against one another in forcing the offer of an enormous purse for the big fight. Sid Hester of the Mission athletic club of San Francisco is on record with an offer of a $75,000 purse or 70 per cent. of the gross receipts and 50 per cent. of the moving picture privileges. James Coffroth of the Colma athletic club said some time ago that he would make a higher bid than anybody, but when he learned of the Hester proposition after his arrival here on Monday, Coffroth refused to hint at the size of the purse he will hang up. In addition to Hester and Coffroth, another San Francisco promoter, Jack Gleason, has wired Jeffries that he will be here next Monday with an offer that will land the battle, and that he will build a huge amphitheater just outside of San Francisco to accommodate 25,000 spectators. Meanwhile the Miller brothers of "101 Ranch," Oklahoma, have announced an offer of $60,000, providing the governor of that state will grant a permit.

American Actress Married.

London, Oct. 27.—May Kinder, an American musical comedy actress, who has achieved a number of successes here and is now appearing in "The Dollar Princess," was married in the registrar's office to Henry Jacob Delavalastey, a member of the family of which Lord Hasting is the head. The bridegroom is just over twenty-one. His mother, who is a daughter of the Marquis of Conyngham, is well known in society as Lady Florence Willoughby.

Battleship North Dakota.

Boston, Oct. 27.—The battleship North Dakota is to leave the plant of her builders at Fore River on Thursday morning for Provincetown, where builders' trials will be held. Several rounds will be made over the mile course off Provincetown to ascertain how well the propellers now in place will work and to get a general idea of the behavior of the great ship when under way.

UNCLE JOE AND PRESIDENT TAFT

Are Not Agreed on the Mississippi Plan.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 27.—The presidential party and big excursion of notables arrived here this morning and was received with enthusiasm. They leave later today for Helena, Ark. President Taft and "Uncle Joe" Cannon on the trip down the Mississippi river are fighting out the question whether or not bonds should be issued for the improvement of inland waterways, but Speaker Cannon will be found supporting Mr. Taft in the recommendation provided the President can not be dissuaded, but the speaker will do his best to get him to change his mind.

Uncle Joe's enemies are saying that his support of a bond issue would be only a partial fulfillment of promises made by the Republican leaders in congress when President Taft signed the Payne tariff bill. In the meantime, however, the speaker is showing on the cruise down the river that he differs radically from the president on the proposition.

Nearly all of the delegates who are steering their course over the Mississippi river sandbars are rooting only for a deepening of the river into a fourteen foot channel. That was the improvement which is pressing. President Taft indicated today that the Mississippi could wait until the Ohio river improvements were finished. It was a cruel blow to the junketers here. They have three days more on this sandbar-dodging cruise, and the President has taken all the wind out of their sails so far as the next session of congress is concerned.

"It seems better," said the president, "to push first the completion of the Ohio river improvements as a demonstration of what can be done and then take up the Mississippi. Perhaps that plan won't meet the views of the people in the Mississippi valley and Illinois, but they can congratulate themselves that I haven't the power to decide on the subject."

In making this statement at Cairo, Mr. Taft was perfectly safe so far as the audience of 10,000 was concerned, for that city is at the mouth of the Ohio. Some deep waterway people accused Mr. Taft of being a diplomat in reserving this important statement for Cairo, and he accepted the imputation.

President Taft's voice was husky again today and he had trouble in making himself heard at all of his stops.

The Cause of Colds

Good Advice Regarding the Prevention of Coughs and Colds.

If people would only fortify and strengthen the system, the majority of cases of coughs, colds and pneumonia might be avoided. These troubles are frequently due to weakness, which produces a catarrhal condition of the mucous membrane, which is an internal skin of the body. When this skin is weakened it becomes easily infected with germs which cause many of the diseases to which flesh is heir. Healthy mucous membranes are essential safeguards of the body's general health.

An excellent aid in the prevention of coughs, colds, pneumonia, and such like infectious diseases, is a remedy that will prevent or cure catarrh.

We have a remedy which we honestly believe to be unsurpassed in excellence for the prevention of coughs, colds and all catarrhal conditions. It is the prescription of a famous physician, who has an enviable reputation of thirty years of cures gained through the use of this formula. We promise to make no charge for the medicine should it fail to do as we claim. We urge everybody who has need of such a medicine to try Rexall Muc-Tone.

It stands to reason that we could not afford to make such statements and give our own personal guarantee to this remedy if we were not prepared to prove the reasonableness of our claim in every particular, and we see no reason why any one should hesitate to accept our offer and try it. We have two sizes of Rexall Muc-Tone, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Sometimes a marked relief. As a general thing the most chronic case is relieved with an average of three large bottles. You can obtain Rexall Remedies in Rushville only at our store, The Rexall Store, Lytle's Drug Store.

MURDER IN SECOND DEGREE

This is the Finding of the Jury in the Ross Case.

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 27.—The jury's verdict has been received and Dr. N. B. Ross, who, last August, shot and killed Daniel Linder, a conductor on the Muncie & Portland traction line, following a quarrel over 10 cents' excess fare, was found guilty of murder in the second degree. The verdict carried with it a penalty of imprisonment for life in the state penitentiary. When the jury's finding was announced, Ross, who sat manacled and in the seat he had occupied during the more than two weeks' trial, did not change countenance or expression, and said nothing, though when he was brought into the courtroom in the custody of the sheriff and deputy, he was pale and breathing hard.

Not a relative or friend was with him when the verdict was read, and only one of his attorneys was in the room. The courtroom was packed to suffocation and even the corridors were filled with humanity.

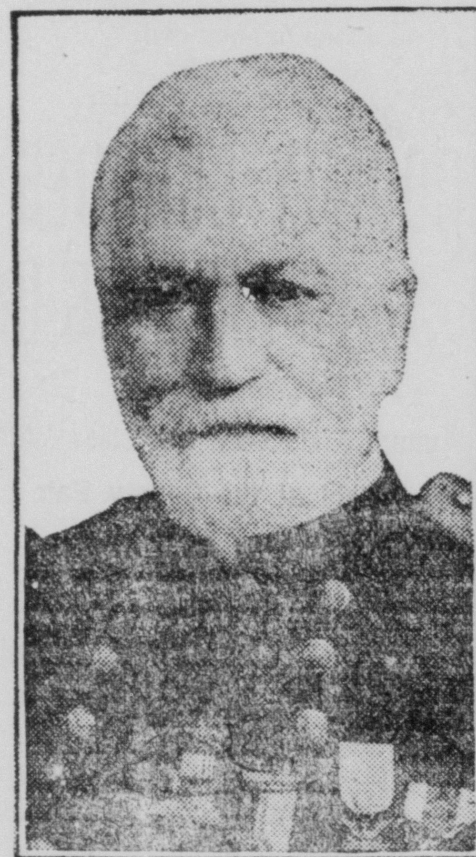

The shooting occurred on August 5, after Ross was ejected from an interurban car by Linder and two or three other traction employees, who happened to be aboard the car. Ross at once began shooting at the men, who were standing on the rear platform. The physician discharged his revolver three times, two of the bullets taking effect in Linder's body.

DEATH CALLS FOR GENERAL HOWARD

An Honored Veteran of the Army Passes Beyond.

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 27.—Major General O. O. Howard died at his residence here last night of heart disease, aged 78.

Major General Oliver Otis Howard was born in Maine in 1830. He graduated from Bowdoin college at the age of twenty and received an appointment to the military academy at West Point. He stood fourth in his class and upon graduating in 1854 was made a second lieutenant in the ordnance department, serving at Watervliet, N. Y., and at the Kennebeck arsenal, Maine. During the next year he accepted the position as professor of mathematics at West Point with the rank of first lieutenant. When the civil war broke out General Howard resigned from the chair of mathematics, saying when leave was refused him at the academy: "My country needs me." He went to the war as colonel of the Third Maine volunteers. At the first battle of Bull Run he commanded a brigade and was made a brigadier-general soon after. He lost an arm at the battle of Fair Oaks on June 1, 1862, but he resumed his command the next month and saw action at Antietam, Gettysburg and Chattanooga.

For his services during Sherman's march to the sea he was made a brigadier-general of the army. It was at this time that Sherman wrote to General Grant: "I find him a polished gentleman, exhibiting the highest and most chivalrous traits of character." He became superintendent of the military academy at West Point in 1881-82. He afterward commanded the department of the Platte at Omaha, the department of the Pacific and finally came to Governors Island as commander of the department of the east. In 1894 he was retired with the rank of major-general.

F. B. Johnson & Co. Sells the Remedy That Cured Stomach Trouble of 14 Years.

And best of all F. B. Johnson & Co. guarantees it to cure you or money back. Read this:

"I have been a great sufferer for 14 years, everything I ate gave me heartburns. I have never been able to get anything that would give me any relief until a friend of mine insisted on my taking Mi-o-na. I took a 50 cent box and I believe I am cured well." F. M. Bryant, Newman, Ga., June 5th.

Mi-o-na is not a nostrum; it is the prescription of a celebrated physician who is a specialist in stomach diseases.

One clever woman calls Mi-o-na the Sunshine Prescription because it changed her from a miserable, nervous dyspeptic into a bright, healthy, happy woman in a few weeks.

These little Mi-o-na tablets are surely wonder workers. They absolutely cure indigestion whether acute or chronic.

They stop belching, gas in stomach, and heaviness, in a few minutes. Dis-easing vanishes as if by magic when one or two little Mi-o-na tablets are swallowed.

NEW MASTS A FAILURE.

Skeleton Structures Declared of Less Value Than Old Ones.

It is declared on good authority that the new military or skeleton masts of battleships of the Atlantic fleet, which look like small Eiffel towers, have not been a success and may be removed at any time. Vibration of the ship causes trouble to the masts, twisting them somewhat and making it impossible to operate the range finder in the masts during target practice.

During target practice in southern waters the vibration was so great, according to report, that the officers were compelled to remove the funder from the mast and go between the smokestacks for their work.

ONE GLASS OF WHISKEY.

(Connersville News.)

Sunday morning a man was found lying in a fence corner near a small creek north of Harrisburg. He was roughly, but serviceably dressed and had the appearance of a laborer. He was in a profound stupor from which those who found him were not able to arouse him, though they tried by every means at hand. The neck of a quart whiskey bottle protruded from a side pocket of his overcoat. Half the contents were gone. The man's helplessness was so utter that when first found, he appeared to be dead. His pulse was scarcely perceptible and his eyes when the lids were pulled open, were set like those of a corpse. He could not utter a word.

He was left in the fence corner after his coat had been wrapped about him so as to keep him warm, and along in the afternoon he recovered in part from his deep stupefaction. He declared he had been working on the railroad improvement in Cambridge City and that on Saturday night he drew his wages for several weeks back, amounting to more than thirty dollars. He said he then bought a new pair of shoes and some other clothing, after which he went into a saloon and drank one glass of whiskey. He said he remembered that a strange dizziness seized him soon afterward and later remembered dimly of being put on a train. The rest is a blank to him, and as to where his money went, for it was all gone, and as to how he came into possession of the quart of whiskey, he could only surmise. His name was not learned.

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

WILKES LAND SEEKER

Philadelphian Plans Expedition to Region Around South Pole.

HOPES TO GO IN SEPTEMBER

Dr. Henry E. Wetherill, Traveler and Inventor, Says It Is America's Duty to Substantiate Claim to Vast Territory Lying Within Antarctic Circle.

Now that the north pole has been discovered the question is arising in the minds of explorers, What of the south pole?

Among those who are planning to go south is Dr. Henry E. Wetherill of Philadelphia, a surgeon and inspector of rifle practice in the Pennsylvania naval reserves, once a companion of Commander Peary in arctic travel and an inventor of scientific instruments.

Dr. Wetherill is preparing to explore the region surrounding the south pole known as Wilkes Land, which, he said recently, was the most fascinating field for the explorer today. "It is a vast territory," he explained, "lying wholly within the antarctic circle and in vastness can be said to be at least twice the size of the United States. Commander Wilkes of the United States navy discovered it, approaching from the south of Australia in 1840. Lieutenant Shackleton crossed a section of this land on his recent dash toward the south pole, entering upon it, as well as I can understand, from a point somewhat to the southward of South America.

Fertile Field For Explorers.

"This great waste affords a fertile field for the explorer because it is land and upon it there is a chance of discovering interesting conditions. There is a comparatively small amount of land in the north polar regions, which makes that territory of less importance, to my way of thinking, than this region surrounding the south pole."

Dr. Wetherill pointed out the fact that it had been a question in the minds of some as to whether Commander Wilkes actually discovered this continent which bears his name, and he thinks that since the north pole has been discovered it is the duty of Americans to send an expedition south to substantiate the American claim and in a way to vindicate Wilkes.

"Such a plan," said Dr. Wetherill, "has been taking shape in the minds of certain members of American scientific societies for years, but now the matter seems to be taking definite form. Edwin Swift Balch, a member of the Philadelphia Philosophical society and a leading authority on south polar conditions, has applied to the Philadelphia Geographical society, and, I think, to two other societies as well, for support in bringing the question to the attention of congress during the coming term. I understand that congress will be asked to appropriate money for the expedition, which I should think would require about $500,000."

Would Take Three Ships.

Dr. Wetherill has made formal application for the command of the expedition should one be formed, and in the meantime he is going ahead with his plans, believing that the funds will be forthcoming. He would take three small ships, to be built after the model of the magnet survey ship Carnegie, of the auxiliary type. One of these would be used as a supply ship, a second for cruising at sea out of danger of the ice fields, but within call by wireless in case anything should happen to the third ship, which he would personally command and which would be used for the actual work of exploration.

Dr. Wetherill has been for years interested in inventing instruments for scientific use. He has recently invented a patent sextant, also a table for taking Greenwich time by what he calls a lunar declination—that is, to determine longitude by an observation of the moon.

He explained that lunar observations for longitude were made in the past, but the task was one of such complexity that few navigators were equal to it. He has devised a simplified method which he considers to be one of his most important contributions to the science of navigation. By the use of this table, he said, longitude could be determined by a lunar observation in fifteen minutes.

The Stellar Sextant.

The new sextant which Dr. Wetherill has invented contains, instead of two reflectors of the old type, only one reflector, which makes it of especial value in polar work, due to the fact that a star can be much more readily observed through it. Dr. Wetherill not only devised this instrument, but he actually built it, using, he said, the model of an old quadrant. Because of its service to navigation by the stars he has named it the stellar sextant.

Dr. Wetherill has traveled extensively. He accompanied Dr. Henry G.

Bryant when the latter went to Greenland in 1894 to try to find the whereabouts of the naturalists Bjorling and Kallstenius, who were lost in the north. On that trip Peary and party, including Dr. Frederick A. Cook, were brought out of the arctic.

Rugged of appearance and enthusiastic, Dr. Wetherill has the typical explorer's personality. He is looking forward keenly to the forthcoming expedition, which he believes he will command. The proper time to start for Wilkes Land, he said, would be next September.

The Democrats are again working that bugaboo of four years ago about the price of gas. This is a settled matter and not a question in this campaign. Sensible people will not let themselves be frightened.

It should not be overlooked that a Democratic mayor and a Democratic council will not appoint a Republican, such as marshal, health officer, fire department heads, water and light plant employees, street commissioner and other officers. All these departments have been conducted very efficiently, notwithstanding the blatant assertions to the contrary. It behooves every citizen to see to it that Republicans will continue in these places. Rushville is a Republican city and all these offices should be filled by Republicans.

The Republican city ticket this year is composed of reputable and steady-going citizens and men of affairs. Politically they are of the Republican party, of course. They have not only voted the ticket and consistently adhered to Republican principles, but they have worked diligently and faithfully for the success of the party. There is not only no ground for a reasonable excuse by any Rushville Republican to fail to vote for the nominees of his party, or to shift his political allegiance at the city election, but there is every good reason why he should work hard for the success of the ticket.

The Jacksonian made an unwarranted and very partisan insinuation yesterday reflecting on the efficiency and character of Wm. Price as marshal of this city. Every law-abiding citizen who has given the matter even superficial attention knows that of all the marshals of recent years, Mr. Price is the best and most efficient. He may be a little severe at times, but an officer dealing with law breakers and criminals must be firm and not lose his nerve, nor procrastinate. He must act quickly and decisively. It can easily be guessed who will be the marshal if the Democrats get in power, and then God have pity on the town.

WOMAN GUILTY OF ASSAULT

Mrs. Anna Wilcoxon of Morristown is Fined.

Shelbyville Democrat: Justice James Webb announced his decision in the case of the State of Indiana against Mrs. Anna Wilcoxon of Morristown. The case was tried last Saturday, but the justice withheld his decision until Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. At the trial evidence was introduced by the State that showed that Mrs. Wilcoxon was guilty of assaulting John Coers, a neighbor, and the person who filed the affidavit against her. The fine in the case was one dollar. Elmer Bassett represented Mrs. Wilcoxon and the case may be appealed to the circuit court.

Hurty's Analysis of Man

What is Man? This question is thus answered by Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the State Board of Health:

This question is thus answered by Dr. J. N. Hurty secretary of the State Board of Health:

A Chemical View: An average man of 150 pounds contains the constituents found in 1,200 eggs. There is enough gas in him to fill a gasometer of 3,649 cubic feet. He contains enough iron to make four ten penny nails. His fat would make seventy-five candles and a good sized cake of soap. His phosphorus content would make 8064 boxes of matches. There is enough hydrogen in him in combination to fill a balloon and carry him above the clouds. The remaining constituents of a man would yield, if utilized, six teaspoonfuls of salt, a bowl of sugar and ten gallons of water.

A Physiological and Anatomical View: A man has 500 muscles, one billion cells, 200 different bones, four gallons of blood, several hundred feet of arteries and veins, over 25 feet of intestines and millions of pores. His heart weighs from eight to twelve ounces, its capacity is from four to six inches in each ventricle, and its size is 5 by 3½ by 3½ inches. It is a hollow muscular organ and pumps twenty-two and one-half pounds of blood every minute. In twenty-four hours it pumps sixteen tons. It beats about seventy-two times a minute. In one year an average man's heart pumps 11,680,000 pounds of blood. The heart is a willing slave, but sometimes it strikes, and it always wins.

Interesting Side of Life

ONLY A DREAM.

One of the candidates on the Democratic ticket had a dream last night. It was a nice dream, too. He has been hoping against hope that he would be elected, but down deep in his heart he had thought he had very little chance. But oh, this dream!

He saw the people standing around waiting for the returns. They were coming in fast, and every precinct gave this particular candidate a better vote than he had expected. All but two precincts were in and it looked good. Then the last two came in and he had a majority of 16 votes. Elected. He was the happiest man in the world.

"And then when I woke up this morning and found that it was the same old story, it didn't make me feel good," said the candidate in telling the story.

LOOKED GOOD, BUT—

He was about the happiest boy in high school. His report book, which had just been given him, showed that he was away up there. His grades, even his department, were very good, and to tell the truth he hadn't expected very much. He hadn't done just exactly what he should have done, and now that he had received such good grades, he was willing to start all over again and do the right thing in the next six weeks.

"Look at this! I guess that's going some. Tell me I haven't a lucky star! Why look at those grades. I would have been satisfied with half the amount," said the lucky man as he handed the card to a friend down town.

"Yes, that's pretty good old boy.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

OLD SPANISH SWINDLE.

(Shelbyville Republican.)

After lying low for the past few months, Spanish swindlers are again at work with the same scheme they have used for the past dozen years and they have chosen America as the most fruitful country for their victims, large sums of money being raised by the confiding American who will put up a small amount of cash to rescue the unfortunate woman.

One of the letters was recently sent from Spain to Albert G. Griffey of this city and he showed the Times-Republican man the contents. The writer of the letter in this case was a banker of Spain. He had embezzled the bank's money and had escaped to Russia, only to be arrested and returned to Spain. He had taken the precaution, however, to secure a document which would be indispensable to the finding of the treasure in a secret pocket in a portmanteau, and his find would be divided with the American who would take charge of the young daughter and recover the property at the place he would indicate for a certain financial consideration. The letter quickly found its way to the waste basket.

QUEER ELECTION CASE.

(New Castle Times.)

Mandamus proceedings have been filed in the circuit court as the outcome of a row at Lewisville over the placing of the People's ticket on the ballot for the election which will be held next Tuesday. The case will have a hearing tomorrow and it is expected by those filing the proceedings that the court will order the placing of the ticket on the ballot as desired.

Recently two tickets were nominated at Lewisville for town offices. One was a Citizen's ticket with the following nominees: For trustee—First ward, W. W. Martin; Second ward, H. E. Crawford; Third ward, Caleb Dixon; treasurer, W. M. Bartlett; clerk, John A. Logan; marshal, William Ails. The People's ticket was as follows: For trustees—First ward, James O. Gills; second ward, David M. Brown; Third ward, Charles Julian; treasurer, W. M. Bartlett; clerk, R. M. Russell; marshal, Chas. Goodwin. And it is over the latter ticket that the trouble has arisen.

The title of the suit is the State of Indiana on the relation of Samuel Kirkham, and the defendants are Oran J. Richardson, Frank Watson and Albert J. McVaine, election commissioners of the town of Lewisville, Indiana. It seems that the petition for the placing of the People's ticket was filed with the board of town trustees, whereas it should have been filed with the board of election commissioners as required by law. There arose a technicality which caused the election commissioners to decline to place the ticket on the ballot, and the mandamus proceedings are brought to compel them to do so.

Most of the large olive growers in Spain have their own mills for the extration of the oil.

The Lure of the Mask
By
HAROLD MAC GRATH
Copyright, 1908, by the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

What humans are chiefly hunting for nowadays is inspiration in one form or another. This story cannot fail to give its reader inspiration, and therefore its value can hardly be overestimated. The magic of the love of man for woman, that, aroused simply by the sound of a voice, causes a young millionaire to cross oceans and traverse foreign lands to find his fate was never better pictured. The story is intensely romantic and alluringly mysterious. The insidious evils of unwise marriage with foreign "noblemen" are cleverly shown, and the familiar Italian brand of intrigue is laid bare. The author shows that the reward of patience and purity is happiness and that the wages of sin is death. He makes you laugh when he pictures the adventures of an American comic opera troupe stranded in foreign lands. He makes you thrill with the wanderlust when he describes La Bella Napoli and the vine covered slopes that rim the Mediterranean.

CHAPTER I.
THE VOICE IN THE FOG.
OUT of the unromantic night out of the somber blurring, January fog, came a voice lifted in song, a soprano, rich, full and round, young, yet matured, sweet and mysterious as a night bird, haunting and elusive as the murmur of the sea in a shell—a lilt from "La Fille de Mme. Angot," a light opera song since forgotten in New York. Hillard, genuinely astonished, lowered his pipe and listened. The voice rose and sank and soared again, drawing nearer and nearer. It was joyous and unrestrained, and there was youth in it, the touch of spring and the breath of flowers. The music was Leococ's—that is to say, French—but the tongue was of a country which Hillard knew to be the garden of the world. Presently he observed a shadow emerge from the yellow mist, to come within the circle of light, which, faint as it was, limned in against the nothingness beyond the form of a woman. She walked directly under his window.

As the invisible comes suddenly out of the future to assume distinct proportions which either make or mar us, so did this unknown cantatrice come out of the fog that night and enter into Hillard's life, to readjust its ambitions, to divert its aimless course, to give impetus to it and a directness which hitherto it had not known. "Ah!" He leaned over the sill at a perilous angle, the bright coal of his pipe spilling comet-wise to the area-way below. He was only subconsciously of having spoken, but this syllable was sufficient to spoil the enchantment. The voice ceased abruptly, with an odd break. The singer looked up. Possibly her astonishment surpassed even that of her audience. For a few minutes she had forgotten that she was in New York; she had forgotten the pain in her heart; there had been only an irresistible longing to sing. Though she raised her face, he could distinguish no feature, for the light was behind. However, he was a man who made up his mind quickly. Brunette or blond, beautiful or otherwise, it needed but a moment to find out. Even as this decision was made he was in the upper hall, taking the stairs two at a bound. He ran out into the night bareheaded. Up the street he saw a flying shadow. Plainly she had anticipated his impulse. She was gone. He cupped his ear with his hand in vain. There was nothing but fog and silence. "Well, if this doesn't beat the Dutch!" he murmured. He laughed disappointedly. It did not matter that he was three and thirty. He still retained youth enough to feel chagrined at such a trivial defeat. There had been something like a genuine adventure, and it had slipped like water through his clumsy fingers. "Deuce take the fog! But for that I'd have caught her." But reason promptly asked him what he should have done had he caught the singer. Yes, supposing he had, what excuse would he have had to offer? Who could she be? What peculiar whimsical freak had sent her singing past his window at 1 o'clock of the morning? A grand opera singer returning home from a late supper? But he dismissed this opinion even as he advanced it. He knew something about grand opera singers. They attend late suppers, it is true, but they ride home in luxurious carriages and never risk their golden voices in this careless if romantic fashion. As for being a comic opera star, he refused to admit the possibility, and he relegated this well satisfied constellation to the darks of limbo. He had heard a voice.

A policeman came lumbering over to add or subtract his quota of interest in the affair. Hillard wisely stopped and waited for him. "I heard a woman singin'," the guardian of the law said roughly. "So did I." "Huh! See her?" "For a moment," Hillard admitted. "Well, we can't have none o' this in the streets. It's disorderly." "My friend," said Hillard, rather annoyed at the policeman's tone, "you don't think for an instant that I was directing this operetta?" "Think? Where's your bat?" Hillard ran his hand over his head. The policeman had him here. "I did not bring it out." "Too warm and summery, huh?" It don't look good, I've been watchin' these parts for a leddy. They call her Leddy Lightfinger, an' she has some o' the gent's done to a pulp when it comes to liftin' fools an' trinkets. Somebody forgot to lock the front door, an' she finds it out. Why did you come out without yer lid?" "Just forgot it, that's all." "Which way'd she go?" "You'll need a map and a searchlight. I started to run after her myself. I heard a voice from my window; I saw a woman; I made for the street; niente!" "Huh?" "Niente, nothing!" "Oh, I see—dago. Seems to me now that this woman was singin' Italy-an too." They were nearing the light, and the policeman gazed intently at the hatless young man. "Why, it's Mr. Hillard! I'm surprised. Well, well! Some day I'll run in a bunch o' these chorus leddies, jes' fer a lesson. They git lively at the restaurants over on Broadway, an' thin they raise the dead with their singin', which often is not anything but singin'. An' here it is after I!" "But this was not a chorus lady," replied Hillard, thoughtfully reaching

Out of the somber fog came a voice lifted in song. Into his vest for a cigar. "The lady had a singing voice." "Huh! They all think alike about that. But maybe she wasn't bad at the business. Anyhow—" "It was rather out of time and place, eh?" helpfully. "That's about the size of it. This Leddy Lightfinger is a case. She has us all thinkin' on our nights off. Clever an' edicated an' jabbers in half a dozen tongues. It's a thousan' to the man who jugs her. But she don't sing; at least they ain't any report to that effect. Perhaps your leddy was jes' larkin' a bit. But it's got to be stopped." Hillard passed over the cigar, and the policeman bit off the end, nodding with approval at such foresight. "Didn't get a peep at her face?" "Not a single feature. The light was behind her." "An' how was she dressed?" "In fog, for all I could see." "On the level now, didn't you know who she was?" The policeman gave Hillard a sly dig in the ribs with his club. "On my word!" "Some swell, mebbe." "Undoubtedly a lady. That's why it looks odd—why it brought me into the street. She sang in classic Italian. And, what's more, for the privilege of hearing that voice again I should not mind sitting on this cold curb till the milkman comes around in the morning." "That wouldn't be fer long," laughed the policeman, taking out his watch and holding it close to the end of his cigar. "Twenty minutes after 1. Well, I must be gittin' back to me beat. Been to Italy?" "I was born there," patiently. "No! Why, you're no dago!" "Not so much as an eyelash. The stork happened to drop the basket there, that's all." "Ha, I see! Well, Ameriky is good enough fer me an' mine," complacently. "I dare say!" "An' if this stogy continues to behave we'll say no more about the vanishin' leddy." The policeman strolled off, his suspicions in nowise removed. He knew many rich young bachelors like Hillard. If it wasn't a chorus lady it was a prima donna, which was not far from being the same thing. Hillard remained his room and leaned with his back to the radiator. He had an idea. It was rather green and salad, but as soon as his hands were warm he determined to put this idea into immediate use. The voice had stirred him deeply, stirred him with the longing to hear it again, to learn what extraordinary impulse had loosed the song. Never the winter came with its weary round of rain and fog and snow that his heart and mind did not fly over the tideless southern sea to the land of his birth if not of his blood—Sorrento, that jewel of the sun bathed cliffs! With a quick gesture of both hands—Latin, always Latin—he crossed the room to a small writing desk, turned on the lights and sat down. After several attempts he realized that the letter he had in mind was not the simplest to compose. There were a dozen futile efforts before he produced anything like satisfaction. Then he filled out a small check. A little later he stole downstairs, around the corner to the local branch of the postoffice and returned. It was only a blind throw, such as dicers sometimes make in the dark. But chance loves her true gamester, and to him she makes a faithful servant. He picked up a novel. "I should be sorely tempted to call any other man a silly ass, Leddy Lightfinger—it would be a fine joke if my singer turned out to be that irregular person." He fell to reading, but soon yawned. He shied the book into a corner, drew off his boots and cast them into the hall. A moment after his valet appeared, gathered up the boots and waited. "I want nothing, Giovanni. I have only been around to the postoffice." "I heard the door open and close four times, signor." "It was I. If this fog does not change I shall want my riding breeches to-morrow morning." "It always rains here," Giovanni remarked. "Not always. There are pleasant days in the spring and summer. It is because this is not Italy. The Hollander wonders how any reasonable being can dwell in a country where they do not drink gin. It's home, Giovanni. Rain pelt's you from a different angle here. There is nothing more. You may go. It is 2 o'clock, and you are dead for sleep." But Giovanni only bowed. He did not stir. "It is seven years now, signor." "So it is—seven this coming April." "I am now an American citizen and may return to my good Italia without danger." "That depends. If you do not run across any official who recognizes you." Giovanni spread his hands. "Official memory seldom lasts so long as seven years. The signor has crossed four times in this period." "I would gladly have taken you each time, as you know." "Oh, yes! But in two or three years the police do not forget. In seven it is different." "Ah!" Hillard was beginning to understand the trend of this conversation. "So, then, you wish to return?" "Yes, signor. I have saved a little money," modestly. "A little?" Hillard laughed. "For seven years you have received fifty American dollars every month, and out of it you do not spend as much as copper centesimi. I am certain that you have 20,000 lire tucked away in your stocking—a fortune!" "I buy the blacking for the signor's boots," gravely. Hillard saw the twinkle in the black eyes. "I have never," he said truthfully, "asked you to black my boots." "Penance, signor, penance for my sins, and I am not without gratitude. There was a time when I had rather cut off a hand than black a boot. But all that is changed. We of the Sabine hills are proud, as the signor knows. We are Romans out there. We despise the cities, and we do not hold out our palms for the traveler's pennies. I am a peasant, but always remember the blood of the Caesars. Who can say?

Besides, I have held a sword for the church. I owe no allegiance to the puny house of Savoy!" There was no twinkle in the black eyes now. There was a ferocious gleam. "Pardon, signor. I grow boastful. I am old and should know better. But does the signor return to Italy in the spring?" "I don't know, Giovanni! I don't know. But what's on your mind?" "Nothing new, signor," with eyes cast down to hide the returning lights. "You are a bloodthirsty ruffian!" said Hillard shortly. "I am as the good God made me. Besides, the holy father will do something for one who fought for the cause." "He will certainly not countenance bloodshed, Giovanni." "He can absolve it." "I was in hopes you had forgotten." "Forgotten! The signor will never understand. She was so pretty and youthful and innocent! She sang like the nightingale. Up with the dawn, to sleep with the stars. We

"Seven years! It is a long time to wait." were alone, she and I. The sheep supported me, and she sold her roses and dried lavender. It was all so beautiful—till he came. Ah, had he loved her! But a plaything, a pastime! The signor never had a daughter. What is she now? A nameless thing in the streets!" Giovanni raised his arms tragically. The boots clattered to the floor. "Seven years! It is a long time for one of my blood to wait." "Enough!" cried Hillard, but there was a hardness in his throat at the sight of the old man's tears. Where was the proud and stately man, the black bearded shepherd in faded blue linen, in picturesque garters, with his reedlike pipe, that he, Hillard, had known in his boyhood days? "I can give you only my sympathy for your loss," said Hillard, "but I abhor the spirit of revenge which cannot find satisfaction in anything save murder." Giovanni bowed gravely and made off with his boots. Hillard remained staring thoughtfully at the many colored squares in the rug under his feet. It would be lonesome with Giovanni gone. The old man had evidently made up his mind. But the woman with the voice, would she see the notice in the paper? And if she did would she reply to it? What a foundation for a romance! Bah! He prepared for bed. To those who reckon earthly treasures as the only thing worth having John Hillard was a fortunate young man. That he was without kith or kin was considered by many as an additional piece of good fortune. Born in Sorrento, in one of the charming villas which sweep down to the very brow of the cliffs, educated in Rome up to his fifteenth year, taken at that age from the dreamy, drifting land and thrust into the noisy, bustling life which was his inheritance; fatherless and motherless at twenty, a college youth who was forever mixing his Italian with his English and being laughed at, hating tumult and loving quiet, warm hearted and impulsive, yet meeting only habitual reserve from his compatriots whichever way he turned, it is not to be wondered at that he preferred the land of his birth to that of his blood. The old house in which he lived was not in the fashionable quarter of the town, but that did not matter. Nor did it vary externally from any of its unpretentious neighbors. A cook, a butler and a valet were his retinue. Giovanni sought his own room at the end of the hall, squatted on a low stool and solemnly began the business of blacking his master's boots. He was still as lean and tall as a Lombardy poplar, this handsome old Roman. His hair was white; there was now no black beard on his face, which was as brown and creased as Spanish leather, and some of the fullness was gone from his chest and arms, but for all that he carried his fifty odd years lightly. He worked swiftly tonight, but his mind was far away from his task. There was a pitiful story, commonplace enough—a daughter, a loose living officer, a knife flung from a dark alley, the sudden flight to the south. Hillard had found him wandering through the streets of Naples, hiding from the carabinieri as best he could. Hillard contrived to smuggle him on the private yacht of a friend. He found a peasant who was reconsidering the advisability of digging sewers and laying railroad ties in the Eldorado of the west. A few pieces of silver and the passport changed hands. With this Giovanni blandly lied his way into the United States. After due time he applied for citizenship, and through Hillard's influence it was accorded him. He solemnly voted when elections came round and hoarded his wages, like the thrifty man he was. Some day he would return to Rome or Naples or Venice or Florence, as the case might be, and then! When the boots shone flawlessly he carried them to Hillard's door and softly tiptoed back. He put his face against the cold window. He, too, had heard the voice. How his heart hurt him with its wild hope! But only for a moment. It was not the voice he hungered for. The words were Italian, but he knew that the woman who sang them was not.

OFFICIALS AFFECTED

State Department Felt Keen Regret Over Prince Ito's Death.
Washington, Oct. 27.—The news of the death of Prince Ito was received in Washington with deep regret. Officers of the state department had a high regard for his great ability as a statesman. Huntington Wilson, the acting secretary of state, was a friend of the eminent Japanese, whom he met while serving as secretary of the Japanese embassy at Tokio. The Japanese embassy in Washington will probably be draped and the members of the staff will go into full mourning. The embassy is in charge of Keishiro Matsui, charge d'affaires. Mr. Matsui received no information today regarding Prince Ito's death. Mr. Fletcher, the American charge d'affaires at Pekin, transmitted to the department a report received from the vice and deputy consul at Harbin, saying that Prince Ito had been assassinated and that the Japanese consul general was seriously wounded. The usual messages of condolence were sent to the Japanese government by Acting Secretary Wilson.

This Piano is recognized as one of the finest instruments made, having in its construction the very best of material and workmanship. More than 5000 KURTZMANN Pianos are now in use in Indiana and for over sixty years its popularity has gradually increased until today the "Old Reliable" KURTZMANN is the most talked of piano in the State. The one to be given away is richly designed in fancy mahogany, and has compartment bench to match.

The sole purpose of this progressive enterprise is to stimulate trade, promote a spirit of co-operation, and to encourage the people of Rush County to buy of home merchants.

Coupons will be issued by the above named firms to every customer for the amount of goods bought. The sum total of these coupons issued by the merchants, will determine the person or organization to which the Piano will be awarded. All coupons must be deposited with T. W. Lytle, Sec'y., or any member of the association, on or before Dec. 28, 1909, who in turn, will submit them to a committee of three Rushville Bankers, who will award the Piano to the person or organization sending in coupons representing the greatest amount of purchases.

The above piano was furnished by S. E. Secoy, local representative for the Kurtzmann Piano

FEARS FOR SAFETY OF HIS FAMILY

Victim of Dynamite Sends His Children Away.

PLOTTERS STILL AT LARGE

Albert Von Spreckelsen, the Indianapolis Contractor, whose Buildings Were Blown Up by Dynamite, Lives in Fear That Further Outrages May Be Attempted—No Arrests Have Been Made.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 27.—Fear for the lives of his children and that his home might be the object of a second attack from the dynamiters, Albert von Spreckelsen, the contractor, has sent six of the younger children to the home of his brother in another part of the city for safety.

Mrs. Von Spreckelsen and the two older children insisted on sharing the danger with him and remained in their home.

Since the terrible explosions of Sunday night, when the barn in the rear of the residence was wrecked, the Von Spreckelsen family have lived in dread. They looked upon the coming of night with fear, as they believed the dynamiters would again place their bombs and try and destroy the home.

Since the bold gang of dynamiters carried out such well laid plans to destroy Von Spreckelsen property and whatever work he had under way, the family fears that there again may be an attack by the criminals.

No arrests have been made in the dynamiting outrages of Sunday night. Detectives seem no nearer a solution of the crime than yesterday. Citizens are aroused and are demanding that arrests be made. A well known manufacturer went to police headquarters and declared if a subscription was started toward a reward for the apprehension of the criminals he would be willing to give $1,000.

THREE BADLY BURNED

Woman at Lafayette Mistook Gasoline for Water.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 27.—One woman probably will die and two other persons are seriously injured as the result of a gasoline explosion that occurred at the home of Mrs. John Zahn. Mrs. Alice Platt of Jackson, Miss., is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Zahn.

Mrs. Platt was preparing a chicken dinner and, picking up a bucket which she believed contained water, poured the fluid into a vessel on the kitchen range with the view of scalding a fowl. The liquid proved to be gasoline, which had been used for cleaning purposes, and when the explosive caught fire Mrs. Platt hurled the bucket from her. In her excitement she threw it straight at her mother, who was standing in a doorway. Mrs. Zahn's clothing ignited and she was soon a mass of flames. Her husband and another daughter dragged her to the front yard and held her under the hydrant. Her arms and legs are seriously burned and she is in a critical condition.

Mrs. Platt was also seriously burned about the face and arms and her little daughter Dolores was also badly burned about the face. The child was standing near her mother when the gasoline took fire.

Loses Buggy While Fighting Fire.
Owensville, Ind., Oct. 27.—While Marion Wallace, living west of here, was driving along the road near his home, he came upon several men fighting a blazing field of tall grass. Wallace jumped out of his buggy and joined the bucket brigade. He did not notice that he tied his horse in the path of the fire, and before many minutes the vehicle was reduced to ashes. The horse managed to break loose and escape injury.

Gilead church, eight miles east of Bloomington, several weeks ago. Sipes shot Nikirk three times, one bullet piercing Nikirk's left lung. He recovered. The testimony went to show that Sipes was intoxicated and that the shooting was without cause.

Death From Runaway Accident.

Miss Dovey was the daughter of Isaac Dovey, a merchant here, and was popular in social and church circles. Miss Wilkinson, who was Miss Dovey's companion at the time of the accident, is improving and hope is entertained for her recovery.

UNITED STATES TOO SLOW

Statute of Limitations Saves Sugar Men From Prosecution.

New York, Oct. 27.—Judge Holt in the United States circuit court has decided that the United States government has been too slow in getting after at least two of the eight individuals who were indicted last July, together with the American Sugar Refining company, on a charge of violating the criminal clause of the Sherman anti-trust law, making it a misdemeanor to engage in a conspiracy to restrain trade and commerce. The decision handed down by Judge Holt was to the effect that in the case of Gustave Kissel and Thomas B. Harned, two of the men indicted, the statute of limitations acted as a bar to the prosecution.

TOWN IS SWEEPED BY TIDAL WAVE

Many Lives Said to Have Been Lost in Mexico.

Mexico City, Oct. 27.—The town of Santa Rosa, in the state of Tabasco, has been inundated by a tidal wave. The loss of life is believed to be large. The property loss is estimated at $5,000,000. For a time the streets and public garden were under three feet of water, trees were uprooted and crops washed away.

The Usumacinta river, on the Guatemalan border, overflowed its banks in the vicinity of Jalapa and San Juan Bautista, flooding those towns.

Prevents Mayor Closing Bar.
Anderson, Ind., Oct. 27.—Anseline Shaffer, a saloon keeper of Elwood, who is trying to keep his saloon open by a court injunction until his license expires on November 3, has gained a point and has prevented the mayor of Elwood from closing his saloon until next Thursday. It is likely that Shaffer will make further effort to prolong the litigation. Three saloons will close November 3 and Madison county will then be "dry" because of a local option vote last May.

Army Officers Apt Pupils.
College Park, Md., Oct. 27.—Lieutenants Lahm and Humphreys have tried their hands at manipulating the Wright aeroplane without the assistance, or even the presence, of the inventor. After the excitement this morning, when both Lieutenants Lahm and Humphreys startled the little crowd of spectators by going up without Mr. Wright, they capped the climax later, not only by ascending alone, but staying up for long periods.

JAPANESE LEADER IS ASSASSINATED

Killed by Vengeful Korean at Railway Station.

STRUCK BY THREE BULLETS

Prince Ito, Japan's Leading Statesman, the Victim of Assassin Just After Arriving at Harbin and While Quietly Chatting With Russian Minister of Finance—Lived Only a Few Minutes.

Harbin, Manchuria, Oct. 27.—The best known Japanese statesman, Prince Hirobumi Ito, met his death at the hands of an assassin at the railway station here at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. He had come to Harbin for the purpose of holding a conference with M. Kokovosoff, Russian minister of finance, in regard to the general railway situation in Manchuria, and had just descended from his railway carriage when he was shot. A considerable crowd had gathered at the station and they gave him a rather demonstrative welcome as he stepped onto the platform. Prince Ito, smiling and bowing, had acknowledged their welcome, and was engaged in conversation with the Japanese consul general here, who had gone to the station to officially receive him, and the president of the South Manchurian railway. The little party had just started to meet M. Kokovosoff, who was standing a short distance away, when suddenly a half dozen revolver shots were fired by some one in the crowd. Instantly there was the greatest confusion. Many of the crowd rushed away in fear, while others crowded upon the platform. Before the sound of the shooting had died away Prince Ito toppled over and fell to the platform unconscious. Doctors were hastily summoned. When they made an examination they found that three bullets had penetrated the prince's abdomen, and they declared that there was absolutely no hope of saving his life. They advised against moving him, and twenty minutes later, without regaining consciousness, the prince died. Meanwhile the police made a rush at the man who had done the firing. They had no difficulty in getting him, for after doing the shooting he made no attempt to escape, but with still smoking weapon in his hand stood calmly waiting to be arrested. Two other men who were with him stood quietly beside him until the police also took them into custody. When the police searched the assassin he exclaimed that he had come to Harbin from Korea for the express purpose of killing Prince Ito, because while the prince was resident general in Korea he had caused the execution of several of the assassin's relatives.

At first all attention was directed to the dying prince, but later it was learned that three others of his party—his private secretary, M. Kewakan; the Japanese consul general and M. Tanaka, general manager of the South Manchurian railway—had been hit by the assassin's bullets. All three were badly wounded, but the doctors think their injuries will not prove fatal.

The police had taken extra precautions to guard Prince Ito and special orders had been given to look out for Koreans, as it was well known that there were many of them in Manchuria, and that they were very bitter toward Prince Ito and all other Japanese. Their precautions were set at naught, however, by the fact that it was impossible to distinguish Koreans in the crowd of Japanese who were admitted to the station to receive the Japanese representative, their racial appearance being so similar.

BUBBLING OVER WITH THE SPIRIT

C. M. Cole of Barnesville, Ohio, a Traveling Salesman, Talks About Buckeye Athletic Club.

PRESIDENT OF ORGANIZATION

Says it Has Had Phenomenal Success—Practically Took the Place of a Y. M. C. A.

C. M. Cole of Barnesville, Ohio, a traveling salesman, was here today on business and what time he was not talking his particular line of business he was expounding the good qualities of the Buckeye Athletic club of which he is president in his home town. He is an earnest believer in the Young Man's Christian Association and believes that such an institution should be in every city.

Working to this end he started to organize a club in his own little city on the plan of the Y. M. C. A., but not along such extensive lines. The Y. M. C. A. movement, he says, had been started several times only to fail before it was mature and he was therefore not very much encouraged with the project when it did not move off well at the beginning.

His plan was to make it cheap so that all classes of men, including the laboring man as well as the businessman and banker could be a member. He started with a list of names and soon had over two hundred members who promised to pay one dollar membership and twenty-five cents a month dues.

He now has a club which is the pride of the little city and one which early every other city points to as an example. Mr. Cole has with him press notices galore from papers all over his territory concerning the athletic club of which he is president and they are all of one tone—that of praise for the organization.

After the members had been secured, Mr. Cole says that they rented two floors of a large building and soon had the place fitted out into cozy apartments. They installed two pool and billiard tables, games of all sorts, reading rooms and a gymnasium. The institution has met all of the requirements for which it was expected and is more than serving the purpose of filling a place in the heart of the young man which was made vacant by the absence of the saloon.

BY THE WAYSIDE

Garrett Clipper: A Garrett business man says: "This credit business is a funny thing. For instance, two men come into my store. Both buy a pair of shoes, same kind, same price. One pays for his; the other had his shoes charged. Thirty days go by and the shoes that were charged are still unpaid for. Then the man receives a statement of his account, which is sent him as a reminder that he still owes for the shoes. Nine times out of ten he pays no attention to it. If he does, eight times out of ten he feels that he has been insulted by your sending him a dun and is sore about it. Now here's the funny thing. In the first place the man asks me to give him my goods without paying for them, which I do. Then when I ask him for what he longs to me he gets hot. What I would like to know is this: Who gets the accommodation? And had I ought to be tickled to death to sell him my goods on credit and keep still about it, whether they are paid for or not."

The dinner-dance at the Social club house last night was a fitting close for the old club house. There was a good crowd in attendance and they enjoyed the evening which was spent in dancing. The elaborate dinner was served at six-thirty o'clock. The music was furnished by Paul Williams of Morristown and Ralph Harrold of this city. Among the out-of-town guests were: Misses Inez and Gladys Lockhart and Ed Doll of Connerville; William Beadly of Philadelphia, Pa., and James Marshal of New York.

Dear Sirs:

I took my Blue Suit down to a Tacoma Tailor to get it pressed and when I went to get it he said. "May I ask who made this suit." I informed him that I did not know who made it but that I bought it back east. He then said, "It wasn't ready-made was it?" I replied that it certainly was and he again said "It's a mighty nifty suit for a ready-made." Now believe me O.P.C.H. I agree with him.
